Isle of Man Government selects Xafinity Claybrook's Compendia pensions software to support scheme evolution

The Isle of Man Government has selected Xafinity Claybrook's award winning Compendia software for pension administration following an independently run full market review. The implementation will see Compendia installed to support the 15,500 members of a number of schemes covering public sector workers including the Civil Service, Health Service, Teachers and Police.

Claybrook's track record for delivery and Compendia's ability to significantly improve automation, efficiencies and costs of pension administration through its fully integrated functionality were important factors in this and other recent new business wins.

Ian Murray, Pensions Director at Isle of Man Government, commented:

"With the number of changes on the horizon for public sector schemes as well as the need to control costs and build on recent improvements in service and choice to our members, the selection of a supplier with the right level of expertise and understanding with flexible software to support was crucial.

"Claybrook were able to demonstrate a clear understanding of our requirements throughout the procurement process and delivered with a level of professionalism which really stood out. As a result the selection of Claybrook was unanimous across the Isle of Man team."

Michael Payten, Managing Director at Xafinity Claybrook, commented:

"We are delighted to welcome the Isle of Man Government to our growing client base which now represents nearly ten million pension scheme members.

"Once again, Compendia's ability to improve the service delivered to these members through the automation of working practices and online self service were key elements of our success. In addition we have developed a robust migration path from the incumbent system which offers clients such as the Isle of Man real peace of mind in transition."
